Push Ahead In New Drive for Coal Agreement

Operators, Union Renew Efforts to Avert Strike; Roosevelt Calls For Reply by Midnight; Union Men on Holiday Today.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Under an urgent plea of President Roosevelt for "uninterrupted operation" of the soft-coal industry, union-operator negotiators today redoubled efforts to prevent an actual walkout of 300,000 to 400,000 miners whose two-year contract expired last midnight.

An annual holiday in the defense-vital bituminous field made today a period of grace for the joint Appalachian conference, which has until midnight to effect a new pact because of the miners' customary idleness April 1 to celebrate gaining the eight-hour day.

The president took a direct hand in the coal impasse soon after conferees representing operators in the eight-state Appalachian area and the United Mine Workers of America (CIO) adjourned their 14th day and admitted a deadlock. From his Washington-bound train, he telegraphed:

"Uninterrupted operation of bituminous coal industries extremely important. Suggest if necessary you continue negotiations during Tuesday looking to satisfactory arrangement. Shall expect report through Steelman before midnight."

Dr. John R. Steelman, director of the U. S. conciliation service, to whom Mr. Roosevelt referred, said it was his impression that the president "wants the reply Tuesday night, since April 1 is a holiday at the mines, and the real interruption of production would not be felt until Wednesday."

Steelman, who has been sitting in on the conference since Sunday, said he viewed continuance of the parley as a sign that an early agreement might be reached.

Union President John L. Lewis declined to comment on the president's appeal and insisted that even though today was a mine holiday, the work stoppage already was "not technical, but actual."

The miners, 330,000 of whom are employed in the Appalachian belt embracing Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Maryland, Kentucky, Ohio, Michigan and Tennessee, are demanding a flat wage increase of $1 a day in both north and south, where the old contract called respectively for $6 and $5.60.

They further seek a guarantee of 200 working days a year and two-weeks' annual paid vacations.

Representing three-fourths of all American bituminous miners, their new contract, when decided upon, would be the basis of later agreements for 120,000 other soft-coal workers in outlying fields.

Washington observers estimated bituminous consumers throughout the country had an average supply to last 32 days. Citing department of interior figures, they said the largest utilities probably had an average supply for 72 days, while small retail dealers were estimated stocked for 16 days.

In any event, emergency and maintenance crews will be kept working. Lewis promised, adding that "coal will be furnished to hospitals and certain small utilities which are fed directly from the mines."

2 WOUNDED IN HARLAN CLASH

Mine Guard and Picket Shot as Trouble Breaks Out In Kentucky Field.

(By Associated Press)

HARLAN, Ky.—Two men were shot and wounded today as picket lines formed in the Harlan county coal fields after the United Mine Workers of America (CIO) ordered miners to quit work last midnight until a new working contract is negotiated for the Appalachian area.

Earl Jones, about 52, a mine guard, was wounded at the Mary Helen coal corporation at Coalgood, about six miles from here.

At the Harlan-Central Coal corporation at Totz, Frank Joyner, 34, identified by Capt. Green Lee of the Lynch, Ky., police department as a U. M. W. picket, was shot in the leg.

Between 40 and 50 automobiles loaded with pickets were on the property of the Mary Helen corporation.

POLICE CLAIM ROBBER PAIR OPERATED HERE

LINKED TO LOCAL CRIMES

Chief Bates Says Suspects Believed To Have Robbed 3 Mansfield Women.

Two men suspected by Police Chief Meade K. Bates of a series of purse snatching here two months ago were accused today of slaying a Youngstown woman who resisted being robbed.

Following capture of one of the men in Michigan last week Bates said he believed they were the pair that assaulted three women here early in February, in a series of central Ohio purse snatchings.

International News Service dispatches from Coshocton today said that Eileen Sullivan, 16, and 14-year-old Jane Cox, girl wife of one of the men, accused Owen Bickel, 21, Coshocton, and Harold Cox, 20, of Millersburg, of killing Mrs. Margaret Foley, 36, in Youngstown March 10.

According to their story, Sheriff Rissell Bean reported, the youths attacked Mrs. Foley in an attempt to rob her. When she resisted she was fatally shot. Mrs. Foley, the wife of a WPA worker and mother of nine children, was found slain in a field near her residence.

Last week the two suspects and Clark J. Randle, 20, of Coshocton, were allegedly involved in a shooting episode with Michigan state police. Randle and Bickel were captured, but Cox escaped.

Cox's wife and Miss Sullivan were taken into custody in Michigan and later removed to Cambridge for questioning. The sheriff said they blamed the Youngstown slaying on Cox and Bickel and asserted that Randle was not involved.

The pair was believed by Bates to be the ones who slugged three Mansfield women, robbed them of their purses and then escaped in a car.

Mrs. O. G. Place, 100 Glenwood boulevard, was slugged and robbed of her purse at Summit street and Sherman avenue; Mrs. Edith Ernsberger, 172 Raleigh avenue, was slugged while she was walking on West Third street, and Mrs. L. J. Murphy, 153 Arthur avenue was J. Murphy, West First street, less than a block from her home.

PLANS APPEAL IN MT. VERNON CASE

Convicted Clevelander Fights to Escape Pen Sentence.

MT. VERNON, O.—(U.P.)—Counsel for Robert Firestone, manager of the Glaze-Rite company of Cleveland, planned today to appeal Firestone's three-to-15-year penitentiary sentence.

Firestone was convicted and sentenced for attempting to induce Harry Barrington to escape from the London prison farm. Common Pleas Judges Charles D. Hayden deferred sentence until May 15 after J. S. McDevitt, Mt. Vernon attorney, said an appeal would be filed.

The court released Firestone under $5,000 bond.

His Play Suit Thwarts Tragedy

Three-year-old Richard Horchler was fully recovered today from the ducking he got yesterday in the small lake in front of the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Horchler — a ducking that might have ended in tragedy. Miss the boy for some time, his grandmother found him floating in the lake, a water-resistant sailcloth play suit serving as "water wings," preventing him from going under. The child had fallen into the lake and had been in the water about half an hour.

Former Mansfielder Reported Released With 4 Others.

Miss Alice Butts, reported to be a former Mansfield resident, who was one of 15 Americans seized by Japanese authorities in Japan last week, was released yesterday, according to an Associated Press dispatch today. Miss Butts was a missionary.

The Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions in New York yesterday wired Dr. William Blair of Columbus, furloughed Presbyterian missionary, that his brother, Dr. Herbert Blair, and Miss Butts had been released.

Dr. Blair said that the Americans were probably arrested for distributing programs in connection with a "World Day of Prayer For Women," an annual interdenominational event.

Miss Blair was reported as a missionary from Mansfield but a check with church authorities failed to reveal any record of her service from here. No relatives were located in the city.

ASKS STATE TO PAY UP CLAIMS

Bill By Jameson Would Give County $8,019 as Prison Transportation Refund.

State Senator Joseph Jameson of Lorain, who represents the 27th-29-th district which includes Richland county, was today responsible for a $1,000,000 "headache" for administration leaders.

Jameson has introduced a bill which would authorize an appropriation to pay county claims for the transportation of criminals from courts to penal institutions and other court criminal costs.

The bill, which Jameson estimates will total more than $1,000,000 and only covers expenses since 1934, will have its initial hearing today before the senate finance committee.

If passed, Jameson's bill would result in a $8,019 refund to Richland county. Refunds to neighboring counties would include: Ashland, $2,437; Crawford, $2,445; Holmes, $1,313; and Huron, $2,174. Claims range from $278 in Morrow county to $220,000 in Cuyahoga.

COUNCIL TAKES UP O. P. S. RATE OFFER TONIGHT

Ordinance To Be Submitted Despite Committee Failure To Recommend Approval.

TWO DEMOCRATS OPPOSE

Miller and Croak Say They Want More Time to Study Proposed Reductions.

The proposed new domestic electric rate contract ordinance will come before council for its first reading tonight, but without any recommendation from council's utilities committee.

Chairman Russell D. Porch obtained agreement from the other members of the committee—Fred Miller and Arthur L. Croak—to present the ordinance, but they balked at attaching a recommendation to the bill, which proposes a rate reduction in a five-year contract.

Miller and Croak—both Democrats—took the stand that they wanted more information about the proposal, made last week by the Ohio Public Service company, before taking any action. They said they wanted to study the bill further, and suggested that city officials in Elyria and Lorain be questioned as to their rate ordinances.

Those two cities, both served by the O. P. S., now have rate contract ordinances providing the same rates set up in the Mansfield offer.

The rate is the lowest the company has ever offered here and is as low as the rates in any city served by the company. The rate has been in effect for some time in Lorain, and goes into effect in Elyria July 1.

Joy A. Herbert, Mansfield division manager and vice president of the O. P. S. had suggested that if council approved the rate, and it was then approved by the O. P. S. board of directors, the reduction might then be put in effect here on July 1 also.

A check today revealed that Mansfield is the only major city served by the O. P. S. not now operating on a rate contract basis. Lorain and Elyria have negotiated periodically with the company on that basis for about 20 years.

Porch outlined the proposed

STRIKE AVERTED

Columbus Grants Pay Boost to Light Plant Workers.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— A strike of municipal light plant employes apparently was averted today by city council's early morning action in approving wage increases, but a walkout of 15 to 20 building inspectors still threatened.

Councilmen were to meet this afternoon to enact legislation hiking the wage scales of about 30 maintenance employes of the light plant, who left their jobs a month ago for four hours in their initial effort to win pay increases.

John C. Getreu, president of the Columbus Federation of Labor, warned council during deliberations which lasted until nearly 3 a. m. that a strike of building inspectors was almost certain if they were not granted increased wages, too.

Propagandists Hurl Charges At Yugoslavia

Outbursts Resemble Those Preceding Polish Invasion; RAF Smashes at German-Held Cities With Devastating New Explosive.

BULLETIN

BELGRADE—(AP)—Government circles said today Yugoslavia's new government was seriously considering joining Soviet Russia and Turkey in a neutrality declaration. Such a declaration was said to have been proposed by the Soviet Union but ignored by Regent Prince Paul, who was ousted last week with the Cvetkovic government that signed the Axis three-power treaty.

(By Associated Press)

German propaganda guns were turned against Yugoslavia today, with declarations that the Balkan kingdom was ridden with "uncontrollable hate . . . inciters doing their work . . . German nationalists insulted and molested . . . the whole country in a state of turbulence."

Rivaling outbursts against Poland shortly before Hitler's military juggernaut invaded that neighboring nation, the criticism came from authorized Nazi quarters in Berlin which declared, for the first time, that they were unable to comment further on political events in Belgrade.

Asked whether this meant the situation between Germany and Yugoslavia now was hopeless, the Germans said it did not necessarily follow—and then listed the Nazi charges.

British RAF raiders were declared today to have smashed at five cities of Germany and German-occupied territory, injected a new type of high-explosive bomb into aerial warfare with "devastating" results, and bombed and machine-gunned German troops on parade.

While the Balkan crisis grew hourly in tension—with an ultimatum from Adolf Hitler to Yugoslavia expected at any moment—the London air ministry told of RAF assaults on Bremen, Emden, Bremershaven and Oldenberg, in the reich, and the Nazi-held port of Rotterdam, Holland.

Berlin said that British night raiders, flying over western Germany, bombed the Bethel Charity hospital near Dielefeld, killing 11 patients and injuring five.

A London communique said the new type explosive bomb was introduced in the raid on Emden, Nazi port and industrial city.

"Houses took to the air when the bombs burst," the British said. "Masses of debris flying through the air were outlined against the flow of the fires... and the results appeared to be devastating."

RAF Blenheims of the bomber command, the air ministry said, flew low over the islands of Terschelling and Ameland, in the Frisian islands, strafing Nazi gun emplacements and troops on parade with bombs and fusillades of machine-gun bullets.

SIX AXIS SHIPS ARE SET AFIRE

Four Scuttled In Venezuela Harbor, Two Off Peru; U. S. Pushes Probe.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Italy and Germany have demanded the release of the crews and the 28 Italian and two German ships which have been seized by the United States government, it was disclosed today.

(By United Press)

CARACAS, Venezuela — Four Axis ships—three Italian tankers and a German freighter — were smouldering hulks off Puerto Cabello today, scuttled by their crews, but three other Italian tankers were under control of Venezuelan authorities to keep them from being sabotaged.

Scuttling of the vessels last night caused an outbreak of anti-Axis sentiment in Puerto Cabello, during which mobs burned the German-owned hotel Gambrinus, whose manager had fled three hours earlier.

As the ships blazed, German businessmen left Puerto Cabello by automobile. One storekeeper there was arrested for harboring a member of the crew of an Italian ship. One German was struck by a bottle during Puerto Cabello disorders. Martial law

FRENCH PROTEST

Send Message To Britain on Shelling of Convoy.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Gaston Henry-Haye, the French ambassador, today delivered to the state department—for transmittal to the British government—a protest from the Vichy government against the shelling by British warships of a convoy of French merchantment off the coast of Algiers.

The ambassador explained to newspaperment that since there was no direct diplomatic intercourse between Vichy and London the French government was asking the co-operation of the United States in transmitting the note.

Henry-Haye also said he would explain to the state department the details of a barter arrangement under which foodstuffs have been exchanged between the occupied and unoccupied zones in France.

Maps Possible Recreational Facilities At Charles Mill

More than 100 members of Mansfield park associations in addition to city and county officials heard Bryce C. Browning, secretary-treasurer of the Muskingum Valley Conservancy district, promise that this section would have one of the finest recreational districts in the country. He spoke at the fourth annual inter-park card tournament banquet last night at Liberty park.

Browning exhibited motion pictures of the Muskingum project and told of the work done to make it not only a flood control agent but also the basis for an extensive recreational program.

Mansfield residents were offered the opportunity to take advantage for recreational purposes of more than 50,000 acres of land, 17,000 acres of water and the 366 miles of shore line included in the conservancy district, especially near Charles Mill lake.

The speaker said that the project affected 18 counties and took up a fifth of the state's area. He explained the struggle between residents in the northern section of the district who were interested in the recreational facilities of the project and those in the southern part who were interested only in flood control.

Browning asked members of the association to co-operate with the district authority in helping to build up its recreational facilities. He urged them to form a committee which could act as a clear-

April Fool's Day Arrives But Pranksters Are Scarce

Today was April Fool's Day but it was noticeable more by its absence rather than the usual barrage of practical jokes.

No bricks under hats, no empty purses on a string, no pepper-loaded candy, not even one measley little exploding cigaret. Mansfield forgot April Fool's Day until well past noon.

In the city hall, no one remembered. In the courthouse, a mild flicker of interest was apparent. Probate Judge Stuart Cramer had Mrs. Glen Miller of his office staff believing that she had spilled ink on her books. Ruth McCammon and Esther Barnett were repeatedly worried by imaginary runs in their stockings. Miss Mary Reale in the county clerk of courts office received a phoney phone call.

Except for that and for the youngsters who always remember, the day was but a shade of its past glory.

Pupils at Mansfield Senior high school prepared for the event well in advance. Subscribers to the weekly Hyphonerian, student newspaper, received it in a green cover with news patterned in April Fool style.

Blood flowed in the corridors of the school as pupils rebelled against too-lenient faculty members. The law of gravity was repealed with disastrous effects. Orderliness was banned in the library. Pupils clamored for detention periods.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, April 2.

A fairly fortunate and interesting day is presaged by the ruling astral influences. There may not be any startling developments but neither will there be cause for any untoward dangers or disasters. It might be well to be cautious in the handling of all writings, documents and publishings and also to exercise ordinary precaution in traveling. There might be some show of frigidity with elders met in social contact but superiors and higher-ups should be friendly.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a fairly favorable and fortunate year, with matters moving in customary grooves, but with some promise of recognition or tokens of preferment from superiors or those in high places. They may be disposed to reward merit or offer friendly as well as financial aid. Use precaution in handling all manner of writings, agreements and be careful in traveling. There may be a trivial slight from elders in a social or sentimental way. Although generally things are warming and pleasant.

A child born on this day should gain the confidence and support of its superiors and may make fair progress in life. It may be subject to anxiety with papers and its travels may hold slight dangers. Early training as to integrity and truth might not be amiss.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"You're also going to tell Father about the letter Marion wrote to Ronald, aren't you?" I asked hastily as Dicky stepped into the booth.

He turned quickly and smiled quizzically at me.

"I hardly would overlook that," he said. "But I shall only mention it, and then turn the Chief over to you for the details."

"Oh!" I said, a bit flustered. "But do you think I ought to read that letter to him over the telephone?"

"I think Dad will be the best judge of that," he returned with comforting assurance. "Just let him do the questioning. He'll know exactly what he wants."

He turned back into the booth, and I waited outside, hearing nothing of Dicky's side of the colloquy, but deducing from his facial gestures and expressive eyebrows that my father was as interested in the account of Carolyn's activities as Dicky had said he would be.

When, having apparently finished his own mission, he beckoned to me, and I took his place in the booth, I was given instant proof that my father did know, as Dicky had said, exactly what he wanted.

"Margaret, darling," he said immediately I had taken over the telephone, "have you that letter with you?"

"Yes, I have," I replied through dry lips, for I guessed what his next command would be.

"I wish you to read it to me at once," he said, "but omitting all names. Let me get this straight. The letter is from the feminine person whom we have been discussing, is addressed to the young man in whom she is supposed to be romantically interested, and mentions a third person related to Richard. I have gathered these things from Richard, who mentioned no names, as I am omitting them. Have I interpreted his meaning correctly? Do you understand me?"

"Yes, to both questions," I told him.

"Then will you please read the letter," he said, and, knowing that the request was a command, I spoke quickly:

"I'll call the girl 'X,' the young man 'Y' and the third person 'Z'," I said. "Will that be satisfactory?"

"Perfectly," he answered, and though he did not utter the word "Hurry!" his tone gave me the command, and I immediately recited the letter which I had committed to memory.

He made no comment while I was talking, but when I had finished uttered a terse: "Please repeat that slowly." I obeyed him, and when I had finished the second recital, there was silence for at least a second.

Then he spoke, swiftly, insistently.

"Richard says you are going to New York tonight, and are getting in touch with 'Z.'"

"I'm leaving at eight o'clock," I told him. "I am meeting 'Z' at midnight, as soon as I get in."

"Good!" he commented. "Now listen carefully. Watch closely 'Z's' reaction to that letter. Say to 'Z' that I wish to know everything there is to know about the inward meaning of that letter. It need not be known to anybody else, but I must have every piece of the puzzle in my hands. Do you think you can impress that upon 'Z'?"

"I'll try my best," I told him simply.

"And your best is very good indeed, my dear," he told me affectionately. "And now I must say good-bye, for there is no time to waste, Richard tells me. He will tell you what I have told him."

But I could not leave without another question.

"The children," I faltered. "Are they all right?"

Try Shoes That Fit Your Feet

By MME. QUI VIVE

How about the little trotters? Do the little footies carry on valiantly, cause you no trouble? If so, you are among the blessed of this earth. Seventy per cent of the sisters have foot ills, which is a pretty appalling kettle of fish. Men have their pedal troubles, too, but not to such an extent as women. The reason? Sensible shoes, of course. Go to the office of any chiropodist and you will see that the reception room is filled with unhappy, frowning ladies who wish that they could walk on their hands, and give their poor pedals a rest.

There's not so much agony in the winter season, but as soon as the thermometer is on the rise there's trouble. During the hot season, traveling over hot pavements is pretty terrible. Why not, if you are a sufferer, give your feet a break, provide them with comfortable casings right now, condition them for warm weather that is ahead?

If you want to step high and step pretty, chuck the spiked heels. Wear them at the festive evening party, if you must, but come down to earth during the day time.

We are here to tell you, pretty one, that if you would march in the fashion parade you must wear walking shoes with heels of moderate height. Spikes on the street are ridiculous. They're ridiculous, anyway, with bases the size of a dime, but they are excusable when worn at the festive party. Girls fancy they make their tootsies look smaller. Nothing to it. Just a notion.

You should hear what shoe manufacturers have to say on the subject. They deplore spikes. They know perfectly well that the foot is distorted, that tendons are under strain, that bones become weakened. But they give the women what they want. They offer sensible shoes that conform to the outline of the foot, that provide proper support. Young girls wear them, but the older women wouldn't be caught dead with them on. Which shows that the younger generation is wiser than the oldsters.

The housewife, going through her daily duties, has no business wearing high heels. Somebody has found out that the average housewife travels seven miles a day. She should wear oxfords that hold the instep firm and provide her with a safe, sure foothold. Being wide of sole they give the toes a chance to live their own lives instead of getting in a huddle. Ever notice the foot of a new born baby? The widest part of the foot is at the base of the toes, and that's just the place where the smart, sassy shoe is narrow.

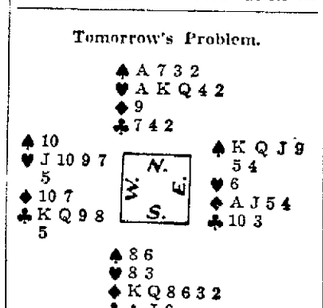
After West led the club K against this precariously doubled contract, it seemed to the kibitzer that South had no chance to keep from being set, especially since he could see East's hand. Two losers in the trump suit and one each in hearts and clubs appeared a certainty. But co-operation by East and West enabled South to make it.

Dummy's club A won the opening trick, then the spade 3 was sent to the J and A. East had played his 3 on the club lead, so West now led his heart J to South's A. The spade 10 was then led, East ducking, and the spade 5 to the K. This left East the high trump, and a chance for immediate tricks in hearts and clubs.

Next the declarer ran his diamonds. East followed on the first two and discarded clubs on the next two, hating to use up his high trump unless to capture a hostile trump. When the fifth diamond, dummy's 7, was led, East decided to ruff with his Q. South, however, discarded his club 9 on that, so that the only other trick East could get was his heart Q. He had waited too long to use that high trump for ruffing.

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

If North bids 1-Heart on this deal, East 1-Spade, South 2-Diamonds, North 2-Hearts, East 2-Spades, South 3-Diamonds and North 3-Hearts, what should East now wo and why?

CCC INVITES PUBLIC TO CAMP

Plans 'Open House' Program Here on 8th Anniversary of Organization.

Observing the eighth anniversary of the Civilian Conservation Corps, the Rocky Fork CCC camp southeast of Mansfield will hold open house Wednesday, inviting the public to visit the camp and grounds.

Tours of the camp buildings will be conducted from 1 to 4 p. m., and if the weather permits, there will be trips to field demonstration farms where the CCC workers are working on soil conservation projects.

It is also expected that there will be exhibits at the camp, showing the work done by the colored boys who are enrolled there. The camp was opened last spring.

Under the supervision of Commander Roy U. Clay and Supt. H. E. Hecker, the enrollees are helping about 75 farmers in this area to inaugurate soil conservation and erosion control practices. The work includes fencing, building of diversion ditches, timber stand improvement work, and planning areas for tree planting.

THEATERS

Mythical Kingdom.

Against a background of heroism, diplomatic intrigue and romance, Edward Small's production "The Son of Monte Cristo," will open at the Ohio Wednesday. Headlined by a stellar cast featuring Joan Bennett, Louis Hayward and George Sanders, the picture deals with the young and gallant Count of Monte Cristo, son of the greatest swordsman of France, and the villainous dictator of a ducal principality squeezed between the Russia of czarist times and Germany. Joan Bennett appears as the Princess Grand Duchess Zona who enlists the aid of the count, played by Louis Hayward, to help her people.

Classified Salesman.

The classified ad department has an inning in "The Great Mr. Nobody" at the Madison Wednesday. Its chief exponent is Eddie Albert in the role of a salesman who wants to sail the seven seas with his roommate portrayed by Alan Hale. Not only does Albert have the worst selling record in the office but he is caught holding out ads so that his needy friends can get jobs. Joan Leslie is the girl in question. John Litel and Dickie Moore are featured. "Sleepers West," with Lloyd Nolan and Mary Beth Hughes and Lynn Bari, is the second picture.

* * *

East Side Drama.

Action drama of life in the New York slums is "East of the River," showing Wednesday at the Madison. Three characters give impetus to the drama. Marjorie Rambeau as an Italian mother, restaurant owner on the lower East Side; John Garfield as a wastrel son, and Brenda Marshall who marries the son's foster brother. Gangsters and get-aways figure in the picture which has Bill Lundigan as the other brother. Re-issue of "The 13th Guest" is firm No. 2.

* * *

Mystery-Comedy.

An elevator boy solves a murder in "You're Out of Luck," mystery-comedy featuring Frankie Darro at the Park Wednesday. Gangsters and sleuths inhabit the film as a daylight murderer is brought to justice by an inexperienced youth and his pal. Mantan Moreland, colored comic, and Vicki Lester, the girl who took the name of the character played by Janet Gaynor in "A Star Is Born," are in the cast. Shocking story of the thousands of homeless girls is revealed in "Girls of the Road," picture No. 2, featuring Ann Dvorak, Helen Mack and Lola Lane.

* * *

Drama In Orient.

"The Letter," dramatic filmization of Somerset Maugham's story, playing at the Majestic, offers Bette Davis a return to the highly charged dynamic characterization which first brought her fame. As the wife of a British planter isolated in a small white colony in the Orient, she becomes involved in a murder from which she is almost powerless to extricate herself. Herbert Marshall is seen as the husband, Gale Sondergaard as an Eurasian woman, and James Stevenson as the lawyer who defends his client knowing that she is guilty. Sally as its predecessor, "Tugboat Annie Sails Again," with Marjorie Rambeau and Alan Hale is the co-attraction.

LOOKING AHEAD

NEW YORK—(INS)—Necessity long has been the mother of invention, but now an invention seeks to become the mother, photographically speaking, of unborn children. Recently installed in the New York Daily News building, a coin-in-the-slot "Infantograph" merges the image of a "fella" with that of his "girl" on a picture of a child's body—so they can "see what their children are going to look like."

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

(Number 3—The Playboys)

Legends of Broadway.

THE playground of Broadway has no lock on its gate. Its carousel whirls on a 24-hour schedule. It is a gaudy, flashy carousel, and its calliope music is loud—but don't reach for the brass ring. No, never reach for the brass ring, because there is no brass ring. There are no free rides on Broadway.

Kilgallen.

The fables that follow are of the big boys who captained the games in the mazda playground. They are a little older now than they were when they made these legends, and they are getting a bit tired, but the playground won't miss them if they fade out of the picture.

The youngsters are training hard and ready to step in . . . Huntington Hartford, Lex Thompson, Al Bloomingdale, Beegee Holloway and the Donahue boys. . . . While they're working for their letters, harken to how it was done by the lads who knew how.

* * *

This one's table cut the Paradise ringside into a huge L. Thirty of the town's glamor girls and six men to light their cigarets made up his party. The table was rimmed with buckets and buckets of wine, and when the floor show was over, chairs were squeezed in for the little lasses of the chorus. Their host, Friar Tuck in a tux, beamed happily. He, Sam Rosoff, liked big parties.

Suddenly he looked at his watch and called over Nicky Blair.

"See that everyone has a good time, pal, and send me the tab—I've got an early appointment."

Blair walked him to the checkroom. The subway builder turned and said:

"Come on, Nick, walk me to the corner."

When they reached the corner of 50th street, Sam said:

"Goodnight, sweetheart, I'm going down here."

Blair looked at him, amazed, and protested:

"You, with all your moolah, in a subway?"

The playboy Rosoff grinned.

"Yeah," he explained, "when I spend it hard, I like to remind myself I made it hard. So I ride where I made it—in the subway!"

* * *

Georges Sanchez liked variety. Politicians, press agents, musicians, bookmakers, chorus gals and stars made up his fast-traveling night club entourage. The Cuban millionaire, whose bankroll grew from sugar cane, was rounding up his usual motley group for a night's sojourn when he was introduced to one of the town's top hypochondriacs. He invited the lad to join the safari through the joy-juice jungles and the lad accepted the way almost everybody did—quickly.

The weary crew of playmates finally arrived at Dave's Blue Room around dawn and waiters scurried for orders of scrambled eggs and ham. When coffee was served, our hypo hero took out a small vial and dropped two pills into the java. Sanchez looked sharply and said:

"What are you doing?"

The lad explained:

"This is saccharine. I always use it."

Sanchez was full of sympathy.

"Forgive me, my dear friend, I did not know you had diabetes. No one told me."

The fellow laughed.

"Don't be silly, Georges. I haven't got diabetes—I just think saccharine is better for anyone than sugar."

The Latin temper of the fabulous playboy flared and foamed over just as earlier the champagne had foamed.

"Get out of here, you tramp!" Sanchez shouted. "All night long you drink my liquor, eat my food—and now you haven't got the courtesy to use the good sugar that paid for all this. Go!"

Tommy Manville, the bon vivante from Bon Repos, belongs at the top of the list of the Earn-It-and-Burn-It boys. When he was playing hard, there was no check too high, no party too large.

One night he walked into a 52nd street hot spot with a party of 12 blonds. The cover charge was three dollars per and wine ran to $24 a bottle. The total of the check as high, but Tommy loved them when they came that way.

On the way out, one of the blonds said she'd like a bottle of coca-cola, so they stopped at the bar and ordered one. The bartender set the check before Tommy, and the playboy yelped.

"Seventy-five cents for a nickel bottle—that's an outrage!" he screamed. 'I'll never come into this clip joint again."

And he never did. Word of the episode got around fast, however, and that's how Tommy unwittingly did his bit for humanity. The proprietors of the other boites, hearing of Manville's rebellion, reduced their high tariff for the nickel drink—to 60 cents!

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—I'm a stranger here myself (said the Man With the Jaundiced Eye) and there are some things I just don't understand.

Hollywood (he went on) is a wonderful place but:

They have a trophy called the Irving Thalberg Memorial Award, and Norma Shearer had it all done over this year, but then the academy muffed the deal.

ROBBIN COONS

After giving it to this fella Selznick last year they couldn't find anybody worthy of it this year, and that's too derned humble of 'em if you ask me. (Ed. Note: Nobody did.)

What's the sense of making a Holy Grail, and Olympian wreath, out of a movie award? I'll tell you what they should've done, granting nobody here did anything colossal enough for recognition. They should've presented that Oscar to the Audiences of America — who have stuck by, through some thick and a whole mess of thin, these many years. Yeah, I know it's got to go to a producer. Brother, those audiences are the greatest producer of 'em all. They produce the Cash. . . . But then, I'm a stranger here, myself. . . .

There's Garbo, for another thing. So she won't talk, eh? Well, mebbe she hasn't anything to say. Mebbe she's saying it. Mebbe she's thinking up a good one. Give 'er time.

* * *

And premieres. They had one the other night. A bunch of people stood around in a downpour to ogle another bunch of people no different from themselves except they didn't get wet. Well, mebbe the non-wetted were prettier, or richer, or had had more husbands or wives than the wetted. But should I get pneumonia for trifles like that? That's what I was thinking as I stood there, soaked through, watching the poor dopes watching the movie dopes. . . .

* * *

And I hear a lot about washed-up actors. They tell me about Case History No. 891-A, name of Regis Toomey. He's hanging on for years, and then he's suddenly hot stuff in "Meet John Doe." He's super, he's colossal, and no fooling. Well, if he's good today he was good yesterday and I wonder how many other actors around town will have to wait for Capra?

Chatter Corner

(Just jottings about people you know, as they're seen here, and there about town.)

Prosecutor Harold Lutz driving up to the courthouse in his shiny new car. . . . County Farm Agent George B. Ganyard "housecleaning" his office. . . . Mary Newcomer in the county surveyor's office talking about the next meeting of the Richland County Young Democrats club.

* * *

Louise McLane telling friends about her trip to the Chardon maple sugar festival. . . . Mrs. Fred Burger greeting a newcomer to Mansfield at the hotel. . . . Everything abustle in the police department's radio room this morning as Ernie Adams, city electrician, and workers from the Mansfield Telephone company changed the department's switchboard over for dial operation. The police will not start using the dial, however, until the Canal exchange is converted from semi-automatic operation.

* * *

Jerry Palmer and Dick Stevick sleepily walking to work. . . . Mrs. Jean Lodrick with 1941 automobile license plates but too busy to put them on her car. . . . Mrs. Donald Moore taking her husband's place at the candy stand in the hospital.

CITY FINISHES $70,000 WATER PROJECT TODAY

Weldon-Lexington Avenue Line Completed, Workmen Start on Another Program.

Mansfield will complete the $70,000 water line project running from Weldon to Lexington avenue today and is making arrangements to start work on another link in its water improvement, W. C. Statler, city engineer, announced today.

Next step in the program will be the construction of a low-pressure line from Park Avenue east to Wayne street at an estimated cost of $22,000. The city will pay approximately $15,000 for the materials to be used and the labor will be supplied by WPA.

Statler said that a slight delay in the final connection of the Weldon-Lexington line yesterday when workmen found a leak in one section of the line during a test. The city engineer said that the leak was near the end of the line and was easily corrected.

During the test and sterilization of the new water line yesterday, some parts of the city went back to the same water supply system which they had more than five years ago. Lines leading off the new project were blocked to prevent any of the chemical matter used for sterilization from going through the whole system. This cut the pressure on lines near the central and in the west portions of town. The Fifth Ward was hardest hit, receiving only a small trickle of water, their supply coming from a line running out through the northwest part of the city.

Statler said that men stood by key valves in the city during the test, however, and if an emergency had occurred, sufficient water could have been boosted to the Fifth Ward within two minutes.

Water in the downtown section had a slightly muddy appearance for a short time at noon when the test was made. Pressure jumped about ten pounds on the high pressure line. Statler said that this would be regulated by the water department.

Work also began in relaying the pavement torn up for constructing the waterline. Statler said that men were already replacing bricks at Weldon and West First streets and that it would only take a few weeks until the entire pavement was replaced.

Statler said that work on the new water project from Park Avenue east to Wayne street may progress somewhat slow because of the drain on WPA workers by private industry. Where approximately 80 men were available for the Weldon-Lexington avenue project, only about 30 will be working on the new line.

In addition to the $22,000 line, the city plans to spend about $20,000 during the summer to run water lines off main lines for new streets throughout the city.

COUNTY HOME AGENT HIRED

She'll Be In Charge of Farm Women's Programs, 4-H Club Activities.

Miss Elizabeth Bay of Guernsey county today was scheduled to become Richland county's first home demonstration agent.

A graduate of Muskingum college and Ohio State university, Miss Bay will be an agent in training here until her appointment receives the final approval of Ohio State university trustees. Her appointment as agent, however, already has been approved by a committee of Richland county farm leaders and county commissioners.

Miss Bay had started work today. She will make her headquarters in the county agent's offices in the courthouse basement.

Like County Agent George B. Ganyard, she will be paid from state and federal funds. Her transportation and office expenses will be paid by the county.

Her duties will include supervision of 4-H club work in the summer and coordination of women's farm extension activities in the county. She will serve as a contact agent between county farm women and the extension department of Ohio State university.

Approximately 50 Ohio counties now have home extension agents in addition to their county agricultural agents. Richland county, however, has had only a farm agent.

PASS MEASURE

House OK's Bill Protecting Reporters, News Sources.

A bill which would allow newspapermen to refuse to disclose sources of their news stories in a trial or investigation before any state, local or official body except the state legislature was passed by the house last night by a vote of 111 to 11.

The bill will not extend the immunity to libel suits in which a newspaper is involved.

Rep. Virgil E. Cramer, Lucas, who sponsored the bill, urged fellow house members to pass it as "good public policy."

Cramer urged the adoption of the bill "to reaffirm the right of the press and free assembly."

Under the present law, newspapermen are subject to prosecution for secrecy in news sources. Not directly charged with refusal to disclose their source, they have been prosecuted for contempt of court or of the body conducting the investigation.

Laff-a-Day

"I can't manage on my army pay, but I do a bit of writing—to my father, of course."

An unintentional April fool prank was played on Mansfield police today. Early this morning, the burglar alarm at Brenner's Jewelry store on West Third street began ringing and a police cruiser was dispatched post-haste. Last week when the jewelry store was burglarized, the alarm was out of order but today it was just a false alarm.

Rev. Ralph C. Zundel, pastor of the Zanesville Baptist church for the past three years, and well known to Mansfielders as the former pastor of the Shelby Baptist congregation, resigned from his charge in Zanesville recently. He was released from his duties at a special meeting of the church to accept a pastorate at the First Baptist church in Middleport, O. Rev. Zundel will end his duties at Zanesville, May 1, concluding three years of service there. His resignation came as a surprise to his congregation.

Herbert Mengert, former Mansfield newspaperman and Richland county native, who is now legislative correspondent of a Cincinnati newspaper in Columbus, has a lot of wood today but no place to use it. Yesterday while sawing wood near his log and frame house near Gahanna, Mengert glanced up to see his home on fire. Before firemen arrived, the house was leveled with a loss estimated at $3,500.

Kathleen Gehl, secretary at Boy Scout headquarters had a very difficult day yesterday. As she was quietly typing some material the supporting arms of the typewriter desk collapsed, pitching the typewriter on the floor with a crash which broke the typewriter frame. Some time later she was putting some envelopes away in a filing cabinet. She closed the door to the cabinet as she completed her work, but some way or other her smock became entangled in the sliding drawer and she had to call for help to extricate herself from the trap. All in all, it was a very trying day, and woe to the prankster who trys some April foolishness today.

HEARING OFF

Commissioners Continue Study of Pleasant Hill Road.

Deciding that they will wait until the new Pleasant Hill-Newville road has been completed by the federal government before establishing it as a county road, Richland county commissioners yesterday continued a hearing on establishment of the road until April 30.

The war department promised the commissioners several months ago that the two-mile section of road would be built at federal expense and turned over to the county for maintenance. Commissioners said, however, that work on the project apparently had been halted although the road is not in condition to use.

A hearing was scheduled for yesterday on establishment proceedings and claims for damages to property in establishing a right-of-way. Only three or four persons appeared for the hearing, and commissioners ordered it continued.

The road, when completed, will replace other roads in the area which will be flooded by waters in the Pleasant Hill reservoir.

PERSONAL TAX DEADLINE TODAY

Waiting Lines Form as Property Listings Reach Last Day.

Final rush of property owners to file personal tax returns before the deadline tonight created a waiting line in courthouse corridors today as people sought the aid of clerks in making out their blanks.

Approximately 4,200 personal tax listings have been made so far this year, Auditor Norman Wolfe said. This is about 100 more than last year, the auditor added.

Wolfe said he expected about 700 more returns in the mail today.

Although this was the last day for filing returns, property owners have until April 10, in which to pay their tax.

Personal tax receipts today amounted to $3,101.95, while classified receipts totalled $23,142.79.

DOCTOR HITS OHIO BOARD'S 'INDECISION'

Charges Internal Friction In Administration and Sees Chance of Bankruptcy.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—In a sharp clash over medical policies, Dr. Sidney W. McCurdy resigned today as chief of the medical section of the Ohio industrial commission.

"This is the most indecisive and most lenient commission I have ever known," Dr. McCurdy asserted in leaving the $5,000-a-year job he took over March 1, 1936.

"In many cases the commission, beset by internal friction, has utterly disregarded recommendations of the medical section. Since the medical policy of the commission conflicts so sharply with my own, I feel that I can not remain. I am not willing to sacrifice my personal integrity and honest convictions."

Dr. McCurdy viewed as a distinct threat to the $72,000,000 industrial compensation fund the "rapid addition of permanent disability cases."

"If there is a depression in the next year or two there is grave danger that the fund may face bankruptcy," Dr. McCurdy asserted.

Will T. Blake, commission chairman, said Dr. McCurdy resigned because he considered the commission "too liberal on some claims in the light of medical proof."

"However," Blake added, "we thought him a very good man, and feel that he did a good job here."

Commissioner Clarence Knisley charged Dr. McCurdy with being too "employer-minded."

"In my opinion," asserted Knisley, former state treasurer, "the head of the medical section has not been liberal enough—he has been too employer-minded. Dr. McCurdy thought he should be allowed to send claimants out to doctors of his choice, and we felt this was not to the best interests of the commission. We are trying to put this on a humanitarian basis, which is the real purpose of the law.

Mother Of Three Sent To Jail On Delinquency Count

Mrs. Viola Solon, 29, of 61 Vale avenue, was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail yesterday by Probate Judge Stuart H. Cramer after she pleaded guilty to a charge of contributing to the delinquency of her three small children.

Mrs. Solon was taken into custody last Friday on a warrant signed by her husband, Sam Solon, who accused her of leaving their three children, five, seven, and nine years old, for four days without care. The warrant also accused her of becoming intoxicated in their presence.

It was the second time Mrs. Solon had been in court on the same charge. Three years ago she was released on probation.

In addition to the jail sentence, Judge Cramer ordered her to pay costs totaling $12.30 or serve it out in jail.

Carbetta Wins Knockout Victory In Boston Tourney

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Many were the tannings I took as a lad for the very same thing those kids at Johnny Appleseed junior high were being cheered for yesterday noon—fighting!

Boxing they called it, and the kids did wear gloves, but fighting it was and no mistake.

They just whaled and slashed away and "let the chips fall where they may," and several times it was almost goodbye Mr. Chips. Almost, but not quite.

* * *

Last of the semi-finals in the school's boxing tournament were being staged during the lunch hour, and a fine kind of educational sandwich they made.

The boys and girls in the stands liked it, and the boys in the ring seemed to like it, but there were some, you could see, faced the ordeal with misgiving and the final gong with thanksgiving.

* * *

And I maintain, some of the lads should have had some of the tannings I missed. So high they held, their chins, so low their lefts, and so often they led with their rights!

But they'll learn, brother, they'll learn!

* * *

All of which recalls the anecdote which crept out of the high school the week of the J. A. C. golden gloves tourney.

It seems Principal Jesse Beer called a teachers' meeting during last period, and decreed that the student body should discuss temperance in their home rooms while the faculty was busy at its powwow.

All seemed serene, so much so that Beer told his teachers:

"See, the boys and girls can conduct classes without your help."

* * *

Harry Mehock and Paul Snyder of the athletic department left the meeting 15 minutes early. They found the halls clear of pupils, right enough, but as they approached the gym the din was enough to raise the roof and float it away.

At least 600 kids were in the stands, and down in the J. A. C. ring, left up in the middle of the gym, were two lads battling it out with gloves on.

"I'm told that every feud in school dating back 10 years or more, was fought out that period," said Snyder.

* * *

Temperance discussion? What more temperate way would you suggest, my friends, of settling old scores? Now if Hitler and a few more had done the same, instead of letting others fight their battles for them, what a fine world this would be!

* * *

Pugilistic pride of the Appleseeds is Chester Miller, who dropped a split decision to Leonard Waddell in the finals of the novice flyweight division of the J. A. C. joust.

But he'll be fighting Waddell no more. He's listed in the 125 pound class in the present Appleseed tourney and by the time he gets into high school that flyweight business will be far behind.

FRISCH BOILS

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — Still boiling over about the Pittsburgh Pirates' losing streak, Manager Frankie Frisch has ordered his boys to be up at eight a. m. daily and report at the park at 9:30 for workouts. Frisch was so peeved about Sunday's loss to the Chicago Cubs that he left the bench and went to right field, where he could say what he was thinking without being overheard.

SPORTSMEN MEET

Richland County Fish and Game association meeting originally scheduled tonight at North Lake park, has been postponed until tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. A business session will be followed by motion pictures of interest to sportsmen.

Reds and Yankees Favored

Writer Says New York Outshines Indians.

By LAWTON CARVER

LAKELAND, Fla. — (INS)—Bring 'em on, line 'em up and lead 'em off, and watch the New York Yankees and Cincinnati Reds go again.

Smothered with the arnica gathered in the major league training camps flung all over Florida and covered with the dust kicked up by hopeful rookies and fading veterans, we herewith offer our selections for the pennants in the forthcoming campaign and nothing will change us now, except the final result. The Yankees look like they will bounce back into the stride which made them the greatest club of these times until they folded up last year. The Reds are as good as they were last year, and possibly better.

* * *

The Yankees won four straight before they were stopped and appear to have rid themselves of whatever psychological fetters tripped them up last year.

* * *

They look terrific, in fact. They look better than the Cleveland Indians and better than the Detroit Tigers, who will make a stubborn but undoubtedly futile attempt to cling to the American league pennant. The Tigers' trouble seems to be old age, even if they don't lose Hank Greenberg to the draft.

As for the Reds, you talk to Manager Bill McKechnie only a few minutes to become infected with this club's optimism for a third straight National league pennant.

So, as we turn our back on the baseball camps and head for Augusta, Ga., and the Masters' golf championship, we leave convinced with Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yankees and with McKechnie that the seven game battle for the world baseball championship will be waged again in New York and Cincinnati, as it was in 1939.

* * *

Of all the clubs in Florida the Yankees have shown to best advantage, as their record of 15 victories and five defeats might indicate.

* * *

The Athletics haven't been good in years and undoubtedly have merely been fattening up on training camp competition. The Yankees have the spirit and punch again as they had when they were spread-eagling the field, and they can maneuver their players to fill any gaps.

According to McKechnie the Reds are stronger now that they were last season. He knows he has the pitching, with Paul Derringer, Bucky Walters, Junior Thompson and the rest in there, but he thinks he also has more punch by virtue of his trading, and that is about all the Reds need to be great—a little punch.

* * *

The Indians are given a great chance in the American league because of Bob Feller, and the Tigers are long-shotters. The Brooklyn Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals are strong threats in the National.

* * *

But the Yankees and Reds are regarded as the best bets and they are our picks here and now and henceforward.

Indians Lead Giant Series

Boast One-Game Margin In 8-Year Struggle.

DECATUR, Ala. — (AP) — The Cleveland Indians today boasted a one-game advantage over the New York Giants in their eight-year-old spring training exhibition series.

Mel Harder and Nate Andrews will share the Tribe pitching assignment here today as the Indians attempt to repeat the 5 to 4 victory they scored over the Giants yesterday at Valdosta, Ga.

Yesterday's win was the Indians' fourth in a row this spring over the Giants and their 44th against 43 for the Terrymen since the two teams started the annual series in 1931.

Al Milnar and Dewey Adkins combined their efforts to set the Giants down with six hits while the Indians pounded Bump Hadley and Ace Adams for nine including a triple by Jeff Heath and doubles by Russ Peters and Oscar Grimes.

Milnar hurled shutout ball during the first six innings, giving up two hits, but the Giants touched two more in the seventh and with the help of an error tied the score at 2-all. But the Indians used three hits good for as many runs in the last two innings to win the game.

TIPPY DYE STUDIES COACHING OUTLOOK

COLUMBUS — (INS)— "Tippy" Dye, a native of Pomeroy and all-sports coach at Grandview Heights high school, today said he would decide within the next few weeks whether to accept a football coaching position at East Cleveland Shaw high school, a basketball berth at Brown university, or remain at Grandview. Dye is a former Ohio State university football and basketball star.

Bissman's Win Special Tilt

Sonny Meder Rolls 933 In Four-Game Match.

Bissman Birdie Brand bowlers chalked up a 69-pin margin to win their $50 side bet special match with Everett Scott's Ft. Wayne Strohs Bohemian Beers at Van Wert Sunday, with Sonny Meder showing the way.

* * *

Meder crashed through with a 933 total on games of 219-234-236-244, and turned in 31 strikes in 36 frames of three games, but failed to put them together for that elusive 300.

* * *

Scott's club got away to a 34-pin lead in the first game and boosted it to 42 in the second, but Bissman's rolled 1080 in the third and gained a 35-pin edge.

SPORTS GOSSIP

By EDDIE BRIETZ.

NEW YORK — (The Special News Service)—Some of the Cubs are a bit piqued because the midnight curfew doesn't apply to Dizzy Dean — Atlanta has come through for Coach Bill Alexander by shifting from central to eastern time, which gives Georgia Tech another hour of football practice . . . Note to Van Mungo: One of the more reliable Broadway gossip columns says you'll be back with the Brooks, if you don't hoist another stein during the rest of the training season . . . Old Ty Cobb is in Augusta for the Masters' tournament . . . Billy Conn turned down a $10,000 flicker offer from M-G-M because it would interfere with his tune-ups for Joe Louis.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Gordon Cobbledick, Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Johnny Allen may regret the interview in which he commented on the Indians' pennant chances . . . The boys are getting their tonsils and adenoids in shape to ask John how it happened he always had a sore arm when the Yankees or Red Sox were in town last summer."

* * *

BUSY MAN'S NEWSPAPER

A wire brought bad news. Doctors have ordered C. L. (Poss) Parsons, sports editor of the Denver Post and one of the best in the west, to a sea level location for an indefinite stay . . . (Keep on punching like you've been doing on the Post for 18 years, Poss) . . . About all the southern brethren can find out about Bill Huie, who authored that Alabama football piece in Collier's, is that he looks a little like Charlie Chaplin and wears spats—yep, spats—in Cullman, Ala. Nobody else would dare do that . . . Looks like the fight writers muffed one when they said Joe Louis was the first man to put Abe Simon on the deck. Big Jim Thompson did it in Pittsburgh . . . Mike Jacobs has issued his annual blast on betting in the Garden . . . Just skip it.—It's April Fool Day.

* * *

VERY TOUGH CHARACTER

Headline: Dykes' riding making "Mad Russion" even madder.

On high-priced rookies, Dykes is rough,

As Novikoff can hear and see,

For Jimmy Dykes is quite as tough

As any on the Zuyder Zee.

* * *

THEN AND NOW

Five years ago, only 23 men reported for football at the University of Louisville . . . The other day 20 came out for the backfield alone.

* * *

HEADLINE HEADLINER

New York's "PM" chronicled Bill Jurges' sensational return to form as follows . . . "Jurges—from dizzy to dazzling."

GALENTO BOOST FOR MAX BAER REJECTED

WASHINGTON — (INS)— "Two Ton Tony Galento's suggestion that Max Baer referee Galento's scheduled ten-round boxing bout with younger brother, Buddy Baer, in Washington, April 8, was vetoed by the district boxing commission today as it named Eddie Lafond, a member of the local commission's staff, for the assignment.

Arthur Donovan, originally scheduled for the assignment, withdrew his name from the eligible list.

School Plans Sport Nights

Intra-Mural Champions Decided at Appleseed.

Intra-mural sports activities at Johnny Appleseed junior high school are heading down the stretch toward the grand finale when champions will be crowned in sports nights program April 23 and 25.

* * *

Approximately 400 boys and girls will take part in the title events planned for the two nights which will include basketball, ping pong, badminton, shuffle board, giant volley ball and Chinese soccer.

* * *

With 300 boys available for the winter's program, an aggregate of 620 took part in the various tournaments, which meant each boy participated in at least two tournaments conducted by Coach Paul Cameron.

A similar situation was found in girls' sports under the direction of Miss Ellen Garner.

* * *

Semi-finals of the boxing tournament were completed yesterday and the following lineup for championship bouts on the sport nights was drawn up:

* * *

85 pounds—Wayne Miller vs. Richard Gassaway; 95 pounds, Jack McCarrick vs. Fred Werner; 105, Glenn Urchell vs. Paul Pfahler; 115, Robert Gassaway vs. Jack Bushman; 125, Junior Devore vs. Chester Miller; 135, Glenn Heston vs. Frank Bechel; 145, Lee Morehead vs. Dick Davis.

Barons Battle Hershey Bears

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The Cleveland Barons and the Hershey Bears open a three-out-of-five-game battle for the American league hockey championship here tonight, with the Ohioans holding a geographic advantage.

Neither team won a game on the other's ice this season and the odd contest of the series, if necessary, will be played here. The clubs clash in Cleveland again Thursday and move to Hershey Saturday. The fourth game would be played in Hershey April 8 and the fifth here April 10.

* * *

The finalist teams split in the regular season, each winning three with two games ending in ties. Cleveland held a slight scoring edge in their games, tallying 29 goals to 26 for the Pennsylvanians.

Takes Off Pounds for Joust

Enters as Flyweight, May Battle Rival.

PAUL CARBETTA, Mansfield flyweight champion of the Cleveland Golden Gloves, whittled off six pounds from his growing frame, and then chopped down Danny Snipe of Chemawa, Ore., in the opening battle of the national amateur championship at Boston last night.

Overweight when he reported to Cleveland trainers Saturday, Paul was promised a spot in the tourney as a bantamweight, but the pounds dropped off and Carbetta entered the Boston battles at the flyweight mark and thereby improved his chances of taking a title out of Beantown.

* * *

There's a chance that the pride of Friendly House will meet an old rival in a future Boston tilt, and it will be a grudge battle if they tangle.

* * *

Frankie Gerrard, cocky Toledo battler who knocked out Leonard Waddell at Fremont, and was challenged by Carbetta, gained a decision last night over Eddie Dames of St. Louis.

Dames was one of Carbetta's victims in the Chicago Golden Gloves tournament in which Paul reached the final round.

Midwestern battlers held a decided edge today as a field of 64 survivors prepared for the quarter-finals of the national A. A

SAVES LOST CHILD

BUTTE, Mont.—(U.P.)—The "homing instinct" of a cocker spaniel is credited with having possibly saved the life of 11-year-old Dolores Smith. Lost in the woods for three hours with the dog following her footsteps, it finally occurred to her to put the dog ahead of her and she merely followed the route home which it instinctively scented.

Parking Tickets Bring In Record $903.25 In Fines

Spring or carelessness was credited with record-breaking receipts by the Mansfield police department for parking meter violations during March, according to the monthly report of Police Chief Meade K. Bates released today.

Mansfield motorists paid $903.25 for overtime parking and were issued 880 tickets. This was $19 more than the previous record set in July last year and was $70 more than any previous collection since the city adopted the use of parking meters. In December, $810.75 was collected.

Bates attributed the increase to the added business in the city with the advent of spring but also felt that carelessness had something to do with it.

The police chief also reported 116 auto accidents in the city during March with 18 persons receiving injuries. Sixty-three persons were arrested, 31 being held for intoxication, eight for assault and battery, six for disorderly conduct and five for petit larceny.

This represented a decrease of two arrests and one injury under February, an increase of 166 parking tickets issued, and an increase of $169.75.

OBTAINS LEASE ON SANATORIUM

State Takes Over Operation of Cleveland Institution.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — The state welfare department today took over the Prospect sanatorium in Cleveland and Welfare Director Charles Sherwood estimated its operation would save the state and Cuyahoga county a total of about $190,000 yearly.

The 55 mental patients previously cared for in the institution will be increased to about 250, Sherwood said. The cost of housing patients under the new arrangement was estimated at 70 cents each day compared with $2.50 a day which the state and county shared for housing expense in private institutions.

The department leased the sanatorium for $1,000 monthly.

SHE'LL KEEP ON WRITING IN SPITE OF UPROAR AT OBERLIN

OBERLIN — (AP) — Marjorie (Midge) Myers, pert Oberlin college sophomore whose writings on sexual fidelity started a controversy that reached the postoffice department in Washington, plans to continue submitting articles to the Oberlin Review, student newspaper.

The next issue will be published April 10 under a new editor.

The 19-year-old New York City co-ed, daughter of Dr. C. C. Myers of the U. S. navy, said she had "no regrets" over the publication of her marriage theory, but was sorry her father's name was dragged into this."

"He doesn't agree with my views," she said after talking with her father by telephone, "but he isn't angry with me. He told me I probably would change my views as I grow older, and I probably shall. But I haven't changed them yet."

The postoffice department found her article was no violation of its regulations, ruling after Rev. C. O'Loughlin, pastor of the Church of the Sacred Heart, asked that the paper be barred from the mails.

"I was quite certain that the postoffice department would take no action," Miss Myers commented.

The controversy started with the March 14 issue of the Review, containing a column by Miss Myers which suggested:

"Marriage should not necessarily demand sexual fidelity and constancy. The sensible marriage should be kind of a business arrangement."

PROPAGANDISTS HURL CHARGES AT YUGOSLAVIA

Nazis Revive 'Outrage' Cry as Tension Increases; RAF Raids Five Cities.

clared to have been hit, causing her to "slew around" and halt with a heavy list.

In the Balkan trouble zone, Germany completed the removal of her nationals from Yugoslavia and shifted some 75,000 Nazi troops to the Hungarian-Yugoslav frontier within a few hours after German Minister Viktor von Heeren took the "last train" from Belgrade.

Von Heeren departed eight minutes before the midnight deadline set for the evacuation movement, leaving the Yugoslav capital on a train jammed with 1,000 German refugees.

Italian nationals joined in the exodus.

Reports were rife in Belgrade that Hitler would demand that Yugoslavia demobilize her 1,200,000 troops now under arms and fulfill the Axis alliance which the ousted regime of Regent Prince Paul signed in Vienna last Tuesday.

Report Nazis Mass On Yugoslav Border

BELGRADE — (U.P.) — Reports spread through Yugoslavia today that Germany is massing troop concentrations on the Yugoslav frontier, including crack mountaineer detachments and parachute battalions such as were used in the low countries.

There was no estimate here of the number of German troops reported to be moving up.

However, it was reported that the German detachments included both Alpinist regiments, presumably some of the Austrian units which saw service in Norway, and parachutist groups such as were employed in the German advance in Belgium and Holland.

It was reported that Gen. Sir John G. Dill, chief of the British imperial staff, and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden had arrived here for consultation with Yugoslav leaders.

It was understood that British troops in Greece had taken up positions from which they could go quickly to aid Yugoslav forces against a German thrust from Bulgaria.

There was growing belief that an attack by the Nazi army was certain. It was indicated that in the event of a German attack on Yugoslavia, a part of Yugoslavia's army would strike into Albania in the belief that in coordination with the Greeks it could drive the Italian army into the Adriatic within a few days.

Poland's Conqueror Flies to Berlin

LONDON—(U.P.)—Gen. Siegmund List, "conqueror of Poland," now German commander in chief in Bulgaria, has flown to Berlin to consult Adolf Hitler and the German high command in preparation for a German attack on Greece and Yugoslavia within the next few days, diplomatic quarters reported today.

Growing suspicion was expressed in British quarters that in addition to preparing for an attack on Yugoslavia, Germany was putting pressure on France in hope of obtaining the French fleet.

The feeling was growing in British and foreign diplomatic quarters that Germany must act promptly to retrieve the disasters which have overtaken Italy in the Mediterranean and Africa and the grave blow to German prestige administered by Yugoslavia.

British Shipping Losses Decline

LONDON — (U.P.) — British shipping losses during the week which ended at midnight March 23, were 59,141 tons, the lowest since the spring sea blitzkrieg began, it was announced today.

During the week, 10 British ships totaling 24,940 tons, six Allied vessels aggregating 27,528 tons and one neutral ship of 6,672 tons were lost.

There has been a steady decline in shipping lost since the first week of the intensified war on British shipping with submarines, surface raiders, and bombing planes. During the week ended March 2, 141,314 tons were lost. During the week ended March 9, the loss was 98,832 tons which declined to 94,402 tons during the week ended March 16.

British quarters said Britain seemed to be gaining in the "battle of the Atlantic" in view of the gradual diminution.

Germans Blast Coastal Town

LONDON—(U.P.)—German planes hurling high explosive bombs for two hours during the night in their second blitzkrieg attack in two weeks on a northeast coast town, caused widespread property damage and it was feared that casualties would prove severe.

Rescue workers were still digging victims from the ruins in mid-morning.

The German raiders hurled unusually heavy bombs on the shopping district along the main streets of the city.

A big bomb reduced business premises, shops and a dance hall to rubble and damaged a wing of an infirmary.

ing house between the district and this county.

The only obstacle to the immediate development of the facilities, according to Browning, is the lack of funds. The district, although largely built through federal and state funds, is dependent for development on rentals from its lands and certain easements given to the federal government, state conservation and other groups.

Browning pointed out that the district's annual tax debt of $25,000 if relieved would release more money for development. He explained that although a county or state does not have to pay taxes on its own land, that the conservancy district must. Browning suggested that the tax load be lowered as the value of recreational facilities increase.

In response to questions concerning cottage rentals, Browning said that camp sites, none smaller than one-sixth of an acre, would be rented for from $25 to $50 per year. The sites will be removed beyond a 100-foot strip bordering the lake which will be left open to the general public.

Following a chicken dinner served by the women of the park associations, William C. Meade, donor of the plaque for which the teams compete each year, awarded it to North Lake park. The winning park ran up a score of 22½ points in the competition held weekly for the past six weeks. Andrew Herring, president of the park, accepted it for the team.

Running close behind North Lake came Johns with 21½, Liberty with 20, Prospect with 18 and South Maple with 16 points. Meade explained that the team winning the plaque three times, not necessarily consecutively, would be its permanent possessor.

Mayor William J. Locke spoke briefly and awarded the park association trophies for the high scorers. F. M. Eichler and J. A. Fischer, both of Johns park, won high scores for bridge and pinochle respectively.

City and county officials and park leaders were called on to make short talks. Entertainment was supplied by the Three Majors, an accordion trio.

The tournament and banquet were sponsored by the Mansfield Public Parks associations. Roy Vaughn, president of the Mansfield Park commission, was toastmaster. Ed Wyllie, president of the public parks associations, introduced the speaker and acted as chairman.

Serving on the committee in charge of arrangements for the tournament and banquet were Wyllie, Vaughn, J. B. Miller, Dan Wolff and J. F. Orr.

Woodland Pupils Give Musical Tomorrow

was enforced pending restoration of order.

After crews of the destroyed vessels were taken in custody by Venezuelan authorities, they were marched through Puerto Cabello streets to the town jail. There they will remain until they are taken to Valencia where they will be interned.

Two Scuttled Off Peruvian Port

CALLAO, Peru—(U.P.)—A Peruvian warship intervened early today when two German merchant ships attempted to leave the harbor and escape to sea. The German crews immediately set fire to their vessels.

Loaded with cotton, the ships were burning fiercely, illuminating the water front. It appeared that both would be a total loss. The crews rowed ashore in small boats. The cruiser Colonel Bolognesi, which had frustrated their escape, stood by.

Their drastic action was further indication that Germany and Italy believe all Western Hemisphere countries soon will follow the example of the United States and seize all foreign ships anchored in their ports.

There was growing basis for the belief. Last night Cuba seized an Italian ship at Havana. In Mexico City, there were authoritative reports that Mexico was preparing to seize 10 Italian and one German ship refuged in Mexico harbors. There is an acute shortage of shipping in South America, and all countries were eyeing the Axis ships. Chile had set the example in February by seizing three Danish ships.

The German ships destroyed here were the Leipzig, 5,898 tons and the Monserrate, 5,578 tons, both freighters with passenger accommodations, both built in 1938, both of the most modern design.

U. S. Studies Charges In Ship Sabotage

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Despite Axis protests over the "protective" seizure of German and Italian shipping, the United States—with an eye to criminal prosecution—put federal agents to work today investigating the sabotage found on most of the vessels.

At the same time, administration officials indicated that they were ordering a close surveillance of French and other foreign merchantmen in American ports, although there were no immediate plans to take them over.

The decision of the United States government to open a criminal investigation of this sabotage was taken as further evidence that the administration did not intend to relinquish possession of the ships, and that the protests of Rome and Berlin accordingly would be dismissed.

He said his reason for asking approval to July 1 was to permit him to organize a sales force. He explained that the company hoped to increase the use of electricity to offset the loss of revenue.

SPORTSMEN TO MEET THURSDAY

Make Plans to Choose County Conservation Committee and Plan Program.

Richland county sportsmen and farmers will meet at 8 p. m. Thursday in the municipal courtroom at the city building to choose a county conservation committee and map a wildlife conservation program for the year.

A county organization was set up a year ago to cooperate with the Ohio Division of Conservation and Natural Resources in carrying out its wildlife program. J. R. Heilman, Mansfield, has been chairman of the committee for the past year and N. H. Heston, Lucas, was vice chairman.

A. A. Miller, Mansfield, and A. A. Mellick, Ganges, have been the county's representatives at district conservation meetings.

Richland county is in district No. 2 which also includes Crawford, Ashland, Wayne, Huron, Medina, Wyandot, Seneca, Lorain, Erie, Sandusky, Ottawa, and Lucas counties.

Thursday's meeting will be open to members of sportsmen's clubs, farm organizations, outdoor clubs and individuals interested in conserving the state's wildlife, Heilman said.

G-Men Jail Youth Flying Kite Over Mill Power Line

YOUNGSTOWN— (AP) —A 17-year-old kite flyer was held today as federal bureau of investigation agents and Mahoning county officials investigated possible sabotage affecting two giant steel plants.

The youth was arrested when a copper wire was found dangling across 66,000-volt high tension wires serving the Youngstown Sheet and Tube and Republic Steel Corp. plants. The youth, seated on a wooden box with his feet on a rubber mat, was holding the kite wire.

Prosecutor William A. Ambrose said the wire had shorted one circuit leading into the mills but that automatic equipment merely tipped the current onto another circuit without interfering with the supply.

Ambrose said a short-wave radio, electrical equipment and information about the sheet and tube mills, including cards bearing names of several employes, were found in the youth's home.

Jameson said that unpaid bills submitted to the state auditor total $993,000 and that many counties have not sent in all their accounts.

The Lorain senator today told the finance committee that the debt is a "state obligation."

"If you don't want to pay these bills, you should repeal the statute," Jameson told the committee. "The state owes this money and should pay it regardless of when it was contracted.

Police Fortress Halts New Outbreak.

MILWAUKEE —(AP)— The Milwaukee police department's rolling fortress—22 feet of armor plate manned by sharpshooters and tear gas bombers—again today broke up disturbances on strikers' picket lines at the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company.

Disorders developed as the day shift of production workers reported for duty in the fourth day of a back-to-work movement requested by national defense officials. But the sight of the approaching fortress prompted disturbers to fall back.

In contrast with last evening, when a sharp outbreak brought the monster's initial use, the police did not resort to tear gas. It was necessary only for the chauffeur to head his machine at the marching column to effect dispersal.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, APRIL 1, 1940.

April's spring weather should be at least slightly more dependable than the March offerings.

Don't embarrass him by asking why he isn't driving today—it's probably because he neglected to get new license plates before yesterday's rush.

According to the Federal Reserve Bulletin, industrial activity has reached the highest level in history—which indicates what can be done after things really get going.

What Does April Hold?

ARRIVAL of April serves to heighten the tension under which Americans have been watching developments of recent weeks and months.

April has been an especially fateful month for the United States, in the matter of entering wars—as note the beginning dates of the Revolutionary war, the Mexican war, the Civil war, the Spanish-American war, and entrance into the World war in 1917.

Realizing the close approach that has already been made to war, with a defense program which encompasses all possible material aid to Britain and other battling democracies, the thought that April may again be a month of portentous happenings cannot be escaped.

The fact, as stated by President Hutchins, of Chicago University, that the people of America "want peace" has little to do with it. The people of England, France, Belgium, Holland—all of the invaded or threatened countries wanted peace—but their wishes were not consulted by Axis dictators.

Nor will the wishes of the peace-loving people of the United States be considered if, by chance, Hitler and his totalitarian henchmen are permitted to get in position to accomplish the world domination to which they aspire.

Considering Hitler's delayed attempt to invade the British Isles, the changed attitude of Yugoslavia, the appearance of strengthened resistance at other points and the encouraging effect of the lease-lend law and its associated assurance of steadily increasing help for Britain, the whole war picture has become quite different from what it was a few months ago—even to the extent of seeming to influence the Russian and Japanese relationship with the Axis powers.

Much will depend, however, on the volume and speed of further aid from the United States, and the immediate call is for unity of action which has thus far been lacking in industrial production of military equipment.

More is needed than resentful acquiescence in a "return to work" order, or the compulsion that may be required later. There is need for friendly accord between employes and employers, and willing co-operation with the government, in a program of quick expansion of defense production to rapidly increasing capacity.

The present month gives promise of being a crucial one in America and in the world. Every effort should be made, in the face of this emergency, to at least temporarily subjugate self interest in behalf of the general welfare.

Approach To the Flying Age

AIRPLANE manufacturers, now caught in a great war boom, are asking what is going to happen to their industry. Everything is fine now except for the strain of forced production. Plant expansions are expected to turn out 50,000 planes a year in another year or two. But with such vast production, and such vast factories in existence, so much equipment piling up, and so much special skill developing, what is going to happen when the war ends?

It would be wasteful and tragic to have that productive power stopped at the end of the war. Much of it could be turned to other uses, particularly in the automobile industry. But obviously it would be better if the plants were able to continue in the same general lines of work and the people were able to use their product for peaceful purposes.

Some onlookers, and some experts in the industry, expect that to happen. We may emerge from the war to find the long-heralded Age of Flying already here. Our young men and women may soon be using airplanes as casually as their parents have used automobiles.

The President's Working Day

EFFORTS to standardize working hours, except in routine manual or clerical employment during normal times, appear impracticable for the general application sometimes optimistically envisioned.

Those burdened with executive or managerial duties, for instance, may envy the ease of a 36- or 40-hour week but find that theirs is more likely to be a 70- to 90-hour week, with problems and responsibilties carrying into whatever so-called "leisure" time they may have.

A hint of this was found in President Roosevelt's talk last Saturday night when he said: "In Washington, as you know, the working day of the presidency in these days averages about 15 hours.

Which means, it would seem, that when there are important things to be done THEY MUST BE DONE. Many people must work more than 40 hours a week in preparing the plans and providing the equipment which make it possible for many others to enjoy the advantages of fewer working hours and more leisure.

Willkie's Costly Throat Ailment

A SPECIALIST who treated Wendell Willkie's throat for a couple of months during the last presidential campaign has submitted a bill for $13,000 to the Republican National committee.

The doctor says that sending the bill was "just routine" and that the charge was based on the length of time he was absent from his practice—a little more than two months.

Whether this is one of the instances based on "ability to pay," as was a custom with the late Drs. William and Charles Mayo, or represents an estimated individual earning power of around $75,000 a year, is not disclosed.

It is rather thought-provoking, however, to consider how many people would be compelled to deprive themselves of medical attention based on that price scale.

It is said that human ears never stop growing during life—yet some do not become as long as their owner's behavior would make appropriate.

Americans are versatile, and milliners over here have shown they can produce just as funny little hats as ever came from Paris.

Human eyes come in seven color varieties—but a black one causes the most comment.

FITTED TO THE SEASON

Listen World!

Stop Meddling!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

TRY THIS on your personal Lie Detector and see how many dents it puts in your cherished conceits. It's from Sylvia Townsend Warner's little classic, "Mr. Fortune's Maggot," that unforgettable tale of the complacent parson who landed on a pagan isle—and how Nature made a monkey of him.

It was, fumed Mr. Fortune, most regrettable that pagans should be so completely gay, contented and friendly without any of the grimmer civilized virtues. Obviously, it was up to him to make them see the evil of their ways, beginning with Lueli, the beautiful bronze boy who became his adoring shadow from the day of his arrival.

So for many energetic months Mr. Fortune labored over Lueli, taking great pride in his "convert's" improvement, until one dreadful day, discovering Lueli's hidden wooden idol, he realized that Lueli had not changed at all. He was still the happy heathen he had always been. It was true, Mr. Fortune could make him desperately misarable by his pleas . . . could, in the end, even make him seek death by taking away his "god." But, to the end, he had to be himself at heart, and not some false, distorted thing which would suit dear Mr. Fortune. So, finally, Mr. Fortune himself went away—for very love of the lad he had so nearly destroyed. But before he did, he caught a glimpse of what ailed him, and was, most beneficially, knocked for a loop.

"I've had a poor, meager . . . sort of life until I came here and found Lueli," he marveled to himself. "I loved him because he was a refreshment to me, my only pleasant surprise. He was perfect because he was a surprise . . . So what did I do? I started interfering . . . I taught him to do this and not to do the other. I checked him, I fidgeted over him . . . I could not spend a day without trying to alter him. . . . HOW DREADFUL IT IS THAT . . . WE CAN NEVER LOVE ANYTHING WITHOUT MESSING IT ABOUT."

And the wretched Mr. Fortune saw that the reason for all this nagging and fidgeting over those we claim to love, all this "messing about," arose not from love but from man's own will-to-power. We were never willing to let the Other Fellow be himself in his own good way and time, but must always be itching to make him over after our own pattern.

Which few frank facts might clear up many a sore problem in your life—or mine—if we had the courage to use them. For it's amazing what cussedness we all try to commit in the name of love.

We're drawn to each other, in the first place, because each one of us is an exciting mystery. Like Lueli we come slipping out of the jungle dimness, wreathed round with the wonder and fragrance of our own alien individuality.

And suddenly life is filled with new music and meaning . . . we excite and inspire each other . . . we rest and refresh each other . . . because we are so new and different. And everyone says, "What a perfect love match!" Oh, yes, for how long? How long before we're trying to make rubber-stamps of each other.

Or perhaps we're parents, dealing with a child—that constantly unfolding and loveliest of all mysteries. We adore that youngster, lavish gifts upon him, build our hopes on his future. But suppose he prefers HIS hopes to ours? Suppose our tastes bore him and our ambitions run counter to his talent? What then? Ask Junior, he knows.

Mr. Fortune destroyed young Lueli's pagan god and wiped out all his laughter. In this rarely humble moment I'm wondering—how many simple gods have I destroyed? How much song and laughter have I wiped away because I couldn't sing the same tune? Darn me and my meddling!

Timely Editorial

Exactly the Same Effect.

If embattled Britain is denied a cargo of the American material she needs to win her war, it doesn't much matter if it was submarined at sea or is held up at the source by strikes in American plants.

It is as bad for Britain in either case. It is as favorable to the cause of those who want her destroyed. We are committed to the proposition that the enemies of the British are also ours.

It is never the professed purpose of a strike in a defense industry to lend aid and comfort to the wolves. But that, exactly, is the effect of every stoppage in the flow of the materials with which they are to be fought.

A strike in these industries is playing Hitler's game as surely as if all railroads and highways into the struck plant were bombed out of action for the duration of the stoppage!—Detroit News.

This Is Ohio

SEVEN presidents of the United States have been native born Ohioans. The first to be elected from his home state was Rutherford B. Hayes, son of Rutherford Hayes, a Vermonter, who came to Delaware, Ohio, in 1817.

Hayes, in his letter accepting the nomination for the presidency in 1876, expressed an inflexible determination to serve but one term. On March 1, 1877, Hayes left his home for Washington not knowing whether or not he had been elected. On March 2 he was awarded the presidency with 185 electors to Tilden's 184.

Completing his four year term Hayes retired from Washington in March, 1881 to "Spiegel Grove," where his modest house was enlarged into a mansion.

Lewis' Effort to Entrench CIO Motive Behind Defense Strikes

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—To insiders, the story behind the clattering headlines of labor strife is two sharply divergent sets of basic conditions:

1. Determination of CIO leaders, secretly directed by John L. Lewis, to use the vast defense program to entrench the CIO in mass production industries, and to break the unyielding anti-union opposition of such die-hards as Henry Ford and "Little Steel's" Bethlehem and Republic.

2. The jurisdictional jealousies of warring AFL craft unions.

In no major dispute recently delaying national defense has the real issue been hours or wages. It has been a tangle over jurisdiction or union recognition.

The defense and labor department officials have been up against brain-busting complexities of bitter factional hatreds, weak AFL control at the top, leftist obstructive machinations and a politics-motivated leadership in the CIO. And on the other side, they have faced hard-boiled employers, determined to make no concessions, regardless of the cost.

Not helping the situation, also has been a certain amount of covert anti-labor sniping by certain $1-a-year die-hards in the defense organization.

Knudsen, Hillman, Stimson, Knox, Patterson, Nelson, Stettinius, Forrestal, have had no trouble working together. They have had differing views, but they have cooperated harmoniously. But some of the subordinate $1-a-year masterminds have engaged in occasional under-cover pot-shooting which hasn't helped the men at the top.

* * *

Big John Lewis.

SCHOLARLY Phil Murray has the title of president of the CIO, but real CIO ruler is the same John L. Lewis who bossed it until last November.

Murray never makes a move without consulting Lewis. When Roosevelt asked Murray to recommend names for the National Defense Mediation Board, Murray first conferred with John L. and at his urging submitted the names of Murray and Tom Kennedy, United Mine Worker secretary - treasurer, who, like Murray, is under Lewis' thumb.

Despite widespread CIO demand for their elimination, Murray has retained Lee Pressman, general counsel; Len De Caux, publicity director; and other leftist Lewis henchmen in key CIO posts.

Lewis is not a "Commy" or a fellow-traveler. But he hates Roosevelt, is hotly isolationist, vigorously opposes the defense program, and burns with secret political ambitions. It happens that the current Communist "party line" is exactly identical, so Lewis is using these aggressive elements in some CIO unions to suit his own ends.

Those ends are CIO domination of the mass production industries, and a new political party ruled by John L. Lewis.

In the CIO, Lewis is credited with being the switch-snapper who gave the signal starting the International Harvester and Bethlehem Steel walk-outs. To him, also, is credited the planned offensives in the shoe and aviation industries.

Close friends of John L. say that during his recent illness their leader spent much time reading military strategy. Apparently this reading was not for pleasure.

* * *

Mushy Bill.

IN the American Federation of Labor, chief difficulty arises from an exactly reverse situation.

There, William Green lacks both the personal drive and authority to exercise firm-handed control. As a result, initiation-dues racketeering is rampant and jurisdictional rows are a plague both to workers and to the defense program.

Fearful of the inner clique of craft-union tycoons, Green has met public outcry against the two abuses with empty promises and hot-air flag waving.

Few of the new army camps and defense plants being erected have escaped costly delays due to shake-downs for initiation fees and AFL jurisdictional melees. But in a few months most of these camps and plants will be completed and these headaches will be over. Also, some of the younger and abler AFL leaders are working quietly on the inside to force reforms.

These young leaders have been among the most conscientious and sincere supporters of the defense program. They have given defense chiefs wholehearted co-operation, often in the face of the bitterest kind of AFL resistance.

Net result of the whole melee, however, is that labor, although 90% patriotic, has so aroused public opinion through the unpatriotic grasping of its leaders, that it may undo the vast progress so laboriously won under the New Deal.

WHAT Washington is talking about: The fact that you can't get a hotel room anywhere without waiting half a day. . . . Evie Robert's plan to put a bridal veil on Toto, Ringling Brothers' gorilla mate for Gargantua. . . . How young Senator Ashurst of Arizona looks since he left his congressional chores. . . . The smooth way in which Robert Stripling of the Dies committee makes Martin Dies one of the most quoted men in the country. . . . The manner in which John Carmody, Federal Works Administrator, always pays tribute to the distinguished career of his predecessor even though he knows that his distinguished predecessor, Harold Ickes, tried to cut his official throat. . . . How Senator Chavez of New Mexico manages to get so many relatives on the federal payroll. . . . How badly Latin American diplomats have missed the state department's able Larry Duggan during his absence in Arizona. . . . The Red Cross benefit style show of Brazilian Ambassadress Martins, which packed in more upper crust donators than any other recent party.

Bridge of Ships.

NEXT big move to aid Britain on the sea will be in cargo ships—and not destroyers. Incidentally this will be a big boon to American railroads. For it is quietly planned to give the British the large fleet of freighters operating between the Atlantic and Pacific seaboards.

These total 113 ships, averaging around 7,000 tons. Last year they transported 7,000,000 tons of freight between the two coasts. Rail haulage across the continent was over one billion tons and the carriers have advised the government that they can handle the additional amount without difficulty.

However, the cost will be higher, but this is considered part of the price to be paid for national defense.

The intercoastal vessels are privately owned and authorities still are undecided how to take them over. Two courses are open; to buy them outright or to requisition them and come to terms later.

Most of the ships are old and slow, but they are the only ones immediately available. This factor of immediate availability, without seriously impairing U. S. shipping, decided Roosevelt to take them over to help maintain the "bridge of ships" which he pledged.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — A manuscript hunt that will take Ken McCormick from Manhattan to the Midwest wheat fields and from the Great Lakes to the Pacific is under way. This chief associate editor for Doubleday, Doran will spend the next six or eight weeks traveling about the country, indulging in leisurely discussions with authors, meeting news writers, chatting of publishing trends, and garnering new manuscripts—biographical, historical, fictional—for possible publication.

One of the ideas of this trip will be to meet those people who have stories to tell but can't write. There are people like that Oscar Levant is one. A witty, glib young man in conversation, he became tongue-tied at a typewriter. It was only a question of bringing the right collaborator to him and the result was "A Smattering of Ignorance," which enjoyed a phenomenal success.

McCormick thinks writers who live away from the Industrial East may be discouraged by what appears to be an over-dose of war books under European datelines. But this is only the froth of the publishing business, he points out—thin and transparents.

* * *

McCORMICK is anxious to discuss what he calls "regional work" with writers in various sections of the country. By "regional" is meant definitive locale. A woman who lives ten years in a box car probably has a good story to tell, but she should write about life as she knows it in boxcars, not attempt to glamorize it with the lights of New York. He thinks it is unnecessary to generalize too broadly, as many authors do, in selecting locales for plot action. If you're writing about a small town in Minnesota, make that picture so true to Minnesota that readers will know that this couldn't have happened in any state but Minnesota. That is what he means.

On a manuscript hunt such as this the routine is this. You go into a town and announce through the newspapers that you will be available (to writers) for interviews. In one day on a previous hunt in Chicago, McCormick talked with 52 persons. From them he obtained 99 manuscripts Of these, two were accepted, and both developed into successes.

Cleveland, Chicago, St. Paul, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Portland, Seattle, and San Francisco will be the major stops on this trip, though he will branch out into smaller cities from these points. It depends on what "leads" he has and what the prospects are.

* * *

McCORMICK, though technically a Jerseyite ("I was born there but we moved about five minutes later") will be heading into familiar territory. Most of his boyhood was spent in the Midwest and his formative years in Salem, Ore. He came to New York about 13 years ago and at one time held seven part-time jobs. He played a piano three hours a day, he worked in a library in the mornings, etc. Eventually he became identified with Doubleday, Doran, and now he is their chief associate editor. He is married to a former nurse at Bellevue who keeps him entertained with hospital stories. "I also used to write novels," he says, "I wrote three. Were those same novels submitted to me today I wouldn't accept them. That's the way the publishers I submitted them to felt about it."

A Farmer's Diary

Trees for Posterity

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

A MILE beyond the city limits I saw an old man walking laboredly along the berm of the road with a bundle of trees on his shoulder.

The trees were large—two years old, or more—and moist dirt clung to the heavy roots showing they had been freshly dug.

I was interested, for I have seen my father and my grandfather carry trees for planting in this same manner, and as a lad, I watched them dig the holes and plant the trees. They always did it with a look of reverent satisfaction, as they sifted the fine top soil, lingeringly, upon the rootlets with their horny fingers.

I stopped, and invited the old man to put his burden on the rear bumper, and get in. He shook his grizzled face and thanked me. I knew he was smiling kindly behind his beard.

"No," he said deliberately, "I'm just goin' down to them crossroads. My son lives on that first farm yonder. I'm takin' the trees up there to plant. Last spring I aimed to do it, but got sick.

"I'm 85, and I likely won't be plantin' trees many springs no more," he add ed, "but I'd rather plant trees than anything I know of."

"But you will never get any good out of your labor," I suggested.

"Well, yes, I will," he declared. "I've made my livin' out, of the soil all my life. When a man's old it seems better'n ever to get back to it. I was born in that house up there, and them big maples my folks planted for me and my family. That grove of pines and the walnuts below I planted for my son and his family.

"I claim God never made anything nicer than a big green shade tree to sit under when a man's tired, nor anything prettier or more interestin' than a tree red with fruit. That's the reason I'm on the road today. One in that bundle is a maple and one is a shellbark hickory that bears large nuts, and the other two are apples.

"I hope they'll do well and bear even for my great-grandchildren. Then, long after I am gone, people may sit in the shade of the bigger ones and while they rest and enjoy themselves, and admire their beauty and their strength, they'll maybe bless the old man they never saw nor knew, who put them there."

Many a man's failure is due to the fact that he aimed too high with a short-range gun.

She Loved a Spy + + + + + +

CHAPTER XIV

There was a soft tapping upon the window. With a frightened gesture, Joan touched the shade and it flew to the top. She looked out but could see no one. Then she heard a voice: "Joan! Open the window"

It was Paul Sherman! Joan drew back and as she did so Paul's head appeared. Had Karl sent him to get her? She shrank against the wall of the kitchen, watching his pleading gestures for admittance. Then she saw that the window was unlocked. Paul could easiiy open it himself. He saw the change of expression on her face, and caught its meaning.

A moment later he was in the kitchen with the window locked behind him.

Joan was trembling. Her face was drawn with strain and emotion.

"What do you want?" she asked defiantly.

"Don't be afraid, Joan! Everything's all right. I swear it."

"You can't fool me any longer," Joan said, moving into the living room. "I know you're all . . . spies. Isn't that what you call them."

Paul looked sharply at her. "Sit down," he ordered. "You look like a ghost. Have you any whisky?"

"There's some brandy in the kitchen," Joan said. Her teeth were chattering. She was shaking so she could scarcely talk.

Paul found the bottle and returned with it to the living room. He held a small glass to her lips. "Drink this!" he commanded.

The sweet liquor burned her throat but it warmed her.

Paul was bending over the fireplace stirring the logs, adding paper and kindling until the fire glowed with a bright blaze.

She watched him in silence until he had finished.

* * *

Her green eyes regarded him with loathing. "Spies!" She spit out the words. "But you can't get away with it. You can't keep me from going to the police! You're very clever, aren't you? Talking against Karl while you're just as bad!"

Her voice had risen hysterically. "Be quiet" Paul ordered. "Do you want Karl to come in here?"

"What do I care?" Tears streamed down the white face and she buried her face in her hands.

"Will you listen to me for one minute?" Paul Sherman said in a low voice.

She did not reply.

"My name is not Paul Sherman."

She sobbed, "What's that to me?"

He took her nervous hands and held them tightly in his own. "It's true I speak German. My grandmother was German. But I am Paul O'Malley of the Federal Bureau of Investigation!"

Silence. The fire crackled and the rain poured against the windows.

"The F. B. I.?" Joan repeated.

"That's right. We've suspected Karl Miller of subversive activities for a long time but we haven't been able to get conclusive evidence. I still haven't got enough to convict him. He's too clever for that, though I believe he trusts me. One reason is that I speak his language."

"But why didn't you tell me?

He smiled ruefully. "This is government business, Joan. I'm risking my neck by revealing my identity to you. If Karl finds out who I am you know what will happen. I had to pretend to agree with him tonight."

"You mean pretend to believe that I shot Eric?"

"That's it. Now Karl will be sure of me. He doesn't know that I am here now. I came ahead of you from the club and I've been waiting for you to come home."

Joan wiped her eyes. "I tried to telephone the police. The phone is disconnected."

Paul lit a cigaret. "I know. I did it myself. Karl's orders."

* * *

Joan shuddered and fresh tears filled her eyes. "Oh, what a fool I've been! But I loved him so much! I didn't know things like this really happened. I thought all the spy talk was just propaganda. What shall I do now? What can I do?"

"Do you know about Karl's wife?"

Color flooded her pale cheeks. "Yes. He told me tonight after you left the club. He seemed very amused by the whole situation."

"I wanted to tell you, Joan, but I didn't dare take the chance of Karl's finding out that I'd double-crossed him. You understand. This business is more important than either of us."

Suddenly Joan rose crying. "And Sybil! Paul, Sybil's not here! She left a note saying that something terrible had happened . . . I'm afraid Karl . . ."

Paul glanced at his watch. "Almost 1 o'clock."

"Paul" she seized his arm. "Do you think that Karl would . . ."

He shook his head. "I don't know. I don't honestly know. But I have a plan. Listen carefully . . ."

Joan and Paul sat quietly together on the couch before the blazing fire. Occasionally Joan turned her head towards the window, wondering if Karl Miller still kept his vigil, but she could not see into the street. Only the sheets of monotonous rain driving against the windowpane were visible. Joan's shivering had subsided and her hysteria had given way to a sad acceptance of the situation. She was more disturbed by Sybil's disappearance than her own troubles. But she listened patiently as Paul told about the spy ring and the part he wanted her to play in the future.

"I want you to stick it out, Joan, to go on working for Karl. Let him think you're afraid to go to the authorities. He must have confidence in his own power if we are ever going to get at the bottom of this."

The girl was silent. It seemed too much to ask that she should go on working for Karl, being with him day after day, remembering how she had loved him.

"It's our only chance," Paul said kindly. "I know how difficult it will be for you but if you went to the authorities now, nothing could be proved. I haven't any conclusive evidence against Karl yet. And he'd certainly involve you in Eric's murder."

"All right, Paul," she said with sudden decision. "I'll do it."

He patted her arm, "Good girl! Karl's sure to give himself away especially since he now thinks that he can trust me. Of course you understand you are not to reveal my identity to anyone, even your sister."

"Sybil! Paul, what are we going to do about Sybil?"

"I don't know. But I can't see what Karl would have against her. It doesn't add up."

One-thirty and still Sybil had come home. What had she meant by that note saying "something terrible had happened?"

"She never trusted Karl." Joan spoke fearfully

* * *

Paul was looking out of the window. "He's not there now. Whatever happened to Sybil had nothing to do with Karl personally. He hasn't been out of our sight all evening. Of course there are plenty of others working with him."

"Karl said that everyone at the Club Elite was involved. Is that true?"

"I'm afraid so. Karl is too clever to take any chances."

"But what does he actually do?"

Paul thrust his hands into his pockets and stared at the fire. "I'm not sure of all his activities and I have no proof, but he is suspected of transferring plans of bombing planes and munition plants to other foreign agents, and smuggling them out of the country. I think he has also been responsible for various strikes in aviation plants, and for the distribution of subversive literature. But I can't prove it. He's working with someone else, of course."

"Remember that freighter Karl took me to and later sent me to with a package?"

"Maybe establishing refueling bases for submarines."

"Not here!" Joan cried.

"No. Probably in the South Atlantic. I don't know yet."

"But you haven't any proof? You can't stop him?"

"Not without proof. That's the trouble. And even if I could get Karl, it wouldn't stop. There's someone higher up."

"How terrible! I didn't think things like this really happened."

"In my job I see worse than this," Paul said.

Joan looked at him curiously. "And your real name is Paul O'Malley?"

He grinned. "The fighting Irish, you know. But my mother was German, so I speak German. But you mustn't even think about my name. It might slip out."

Joan sighed. "I always wanted adventure but I certainly didn't expect it to take this form."

"I'm sorry you got in so deep," Paul told her very seriously.

"It's my own fault. You tried to warn me, so did Sybil . . ."

Their eyes met. Two o'clock and Sybil was still out.

* * *

"I'm going," Paul said rising, "and you'd better get some sleep. I'll be by for you at one-thirty. Karl's orders, you know." He smiled grimly. "It's fortunate for both of us."

"I'm not going to bed until Syb comes," Joan insisted.

"Oh yes you are! You need your sleep. Tomorrow is going to be a tough day. You've got to be clicking on all cylinders. Both our lives are at stake. You can't afford to make a slip. If Karl ever finds out, we'll end up just like Eric."

"Don't say that! Oh Paul, I've been such a fool. I loved him."

He patted her shoulder. "We all make mistakes," he said comfortingly.

When he had gone she tried to obey his instructions. She went to bed and tried to sleep. But the grandfather's clock had chimed three, then three-thirty before she slept, a fitful doze. It was a little after six when she awoke.

"Sybil!" she called hysterically, but there was no reply. Her sister's bed was untouched.

Joan got up, shivering in the cold of the December morning. She went into the kitchen and made a pot of coffee. What had happened to Sybil?

"I've got to keep my head," she thought desperately, pouring the coffee with shaking hands. "But I feel so helpless."

How quickly life can change. Overnight a world can disappear. Yesterday Joan would not have believed that in twenty-four hours her whole existence would be distorted. And why? Because of Karl Miller. Because of a man she had loved.

"Love," Joan reflected bitterly, "what a blind illusion it is."

Sybil had been right. No man could be trusted. Even her woman's intuition had failed her. Or had she deliberately blinded herself to any warning? No matter, now. The die was cast, and she must go on with her part.

* * *

Mechanically she washed her cup and saucer, tidied the apartment and dressed in a black wool suit. Surely Mrs. Murdock would wonder when Sybil did not arrive for work. She would probably try to telephone. . . . Joan glanced at the useless instrument. Or would Mrs. Murdock really be surprised at Sybil's disappearance? She was a friend of Karl's. Exactly what did that mean?

"Even so," Joan argued, "what would they have against Sybil?"

At one-thirty Paul arrived and took Joan to the Club Elite.

"Now remember," he said as he parked the car, "we're not friends. Ignore me. And watch your step."

"I'll do my best," Joan said grimly.

But it was not easy. Not easy to walk into this office, to see Karl sitting at his desk with the familiar red carnation in his buttonhole, the same smile that had once endeared him to her. With shaking hands she removed her hat and coat and sat down at her desk.

"Paul tells me you have decided to be sensible," Karl commented.

"What else can I do?" She paused for a moment, then burst out, "What have you done to my sister?"
